RISK FACTORS

8. Discuss the material factors that make an investment in the issuer speculative or risky:

A crowdfunding investment involves risk. Investors should not invest any funds unless they can afford to lose the entire investment.

In making an investment decision, investors must rely on their own examination of the issuer and the terms of the offering, including the merits and risks involved. These securities have not been recommended or approved by any federal or state securities commission or regulatory authority. Furthermore, these authorities have not passed upon the accuracy or adequacy of this document.

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission does not pass upon the merits of any securities offered or the terms of the offering, nor does it pass upon the accuracy or completeness of any offering document or literature.

These securities are offered under an exemption from registration; however, the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission has not made an independent determination that these securities are exempt from registration.

There is a significant discrepancy between the company's stated business model and its actual operations. While the company description references a professional networking platform similar to LinkedIn, the use of proceeds and business context indicate that Hapa Flick Productions, LLC is actually a film production company focused on completing and distributing a documentary film. This fundamental inconsistency raises concerns about the accuracy of company information, the clarity of the business model, and management's ability to accurately represent the business to investors. Investors may be investing based on incomplete or inaccurate information about what the company actually does, which could materially affect the value and risk profile of the investment. The actual business of film production and distribution carries substantially different risks than operating a professional networking platform, including risks related to content completion, distribution agreements, audience reception, and entertainment industry dynamics.

The documentary film industry is highly competitive, with thousands of films produced each year competing for limited distribution opportunities, festival slots, and audience attention. Hapa Flick Productions, LLC will be competing against films produced by established production companies with greater resources, industry relationships, and track records of success. Major streaming platforms, traditional broadcasters, and theatrical distributors have limited capacity for documentary content and are highly selective in their acquisition decisions. The proliferation of content across multiple platforms has made it increasingly difficult for individual films to break through and reach audiences. Additionally, audience tastes and market trends in documentary filmmaking are constantly evolving, and a film that seemed commercially viable during production may face reduced demand by the time it is completed and ready for distribution. The company's ability to compete effectively will depend on the quality and uniqueness of the finished film, the strength of its subject matter, the effectiveness of its marketing, and factors outside its control such as timing and cultural relevance.

The company's success depends on securing distribution through third-party platforms, broadcasters, or distributors over which it has no control. The film distribution landscape has undergone significant disruption in recent years, with traditional distribution models being replaced or supplemented by streaming platforms, video-on-demand services, and direct-to-consumer channels. These platforms have their own content strategies, acquisition budgets, and programming priorities that can change rapidly. There is no guarantee that any platform will be interested in acquiring or licensing the film, or that the terms offered will be economically favorable. Additionally, distribution agreements typically grant significant control to the distributor over marketing, release timing, and revenue collection, limiting the company's ability to influence the firm's commercial performance. Changes in platform policies, consolidation in the media industry, or shifts in content acquisition strategies could materially affect the company's ability to monetize the film.

The securities being offered are highly illiquid and should be considered a long-term investment with no ability to access invested capital. There is no public market for these securities, and none is expected to develop. The securities have not been registered under the Securities Act of 1933 or any state securities laws, and they may not be resold unless they are subsequently registered or an exemption from registration is available. Under Regulation Crowdfunding, investors are generally subject to a one-year holding period during which the securities cannot be transferred except in very limited circumstances, such as to the company, to an accredited investor, as part of a registered offering, or to a family member or trust. Even after the one-year holding period expires, there is unlikely to be any market or platform where investors can sell their securities. The company is under no obligation to facilitate liquidity for investors, conduct a public offering, or seek an acquisition. Investors should be prepared to hold these securities indefinitely and may never be able to liquidate their investment, even in the event of personal financial hardship or emergency.

An investment in Hapa Flick Productions, LLC is highly speculative and carries a substantial risk of total loss. The company has very limited cash reserves, no disclosed revenue, and is entirely dependent on completing a film and securing distribution in a highly competitive and unpredictable market. The vast majority of independent documentary films do not generate sufficient revenue to recoup their production costs, let alone provide returns to investors. Even if the film is completed and distributed, there is no guarantee it will generate any net revenues after deducting distribution fees, marketing expenses, and other costs. Investors should only invest funds that they can afford to lose entirely without affecting their financial security or lifestyle. This investment is suitable only for investors who understand and can bear the risk of losing their entire investment and who do not need liquidity or current income from their investment. The speculative nature of this investment cannot be overstated, and investors should carefully consider whether this investment is appropriate for their individual financial situation and risk tolerance.

If the company requires additional capital in the future, it may conduct additional financing rounds that could significantly dilute the ownership interests and economic rights of current investors. The company has very limited cash reserves and may need substantial additional funding beyond this offering to complete the film, cover ongoing operating expenses, or pursue distribution opportunities. Future investors may negotiate terms that are more favorable than those offered in this round, including liquidation preferences, anti-dilution protections, or priority in receiving distributions. The custom securities being offered in this round may not include any anti-dilution protections or preferences, meaning that investors could see their percentage ownership and their priority in receiving returns substantially reduced by future financings. Additionally, the specific terms governing how net revenues from the film will be allocated between the company, management, and investors have not been fully disclosed, creating uncertainty about whether and when investors will receive any returns even if the film generates revenue. Investors should assume that their interests will be subordinate to other claims on company assets and revenues.

While the company is classified as being in an 'established' stage, it was incorporated in May 2026, which is in the future relative to the current date, suggesting either an error in the incorporation date or that the company is actually pre-revenue or in a very early stage of operations. The company has very limited cash reserves and no disclosed revenue history. This limited operating history makes it difficult for investors to evaluate the company's business prospects, management's execution capabilities, or the viability of the business model. There is no track record of successfully completing and distributing films, generating revenue, or managing investor relationships. Investors are being asked to invest based primarily on the concept and management's projections rather than demonstrated performance.

The company has very limited cash reserves and is dependent on the proceeds from this offering to complete post-production of the film. Even if the maximum funding target is achieved, there is no guarantee that the funds will be sufficient to complete all necessary post-production work, clear all required rights and licenses, cover all legal and delivery expenses, and execute an effective distribution and marketing strategy. Film post-production costs are notoriously difficult to predict and frequently exceed initial budgets due to unforeseen technical issues, additional editing requirements, music licensing costs, legal clearances, and other factors. If the company requires additional capital beyond the proceeds of this offering, there is no assurance that such funding will be available on acceptable terms, if at all. The company has not disclosed any commitments for additional financing, and its ability to raise additional funds may be limited by its early stage, lack of revenue, and the illiquid nature of the securities being offered. If adequate funding cannot be secured, the company may be unable to complete the film or may be forced to accept unfavorable distribution terms.

The company's ability to generate revenue depends entirely on securing distribution agreements and licensing arrangements for the completed film. There is substantial uncertainty regarding whether the film will generate any revenue at all, and if it does, whether such revenue will be sufficient to provide returns to investors. Documentary films face significant challenges in generating commercial revenue, as the market is highly fragmented, distribution advances have declined in recent years, and audience demand is unpredictable. Revenue from film distribution typically comes from multiple sources including theatrical releases, streaming platforms, broadcast television, educational sales, and international markets, but there is no guarantee the film will be accepted by any of these channels. Even if distribution is secured, revenue may be delayed for months or years after completion, and the company may incur ongoing marketing and distribution expenses that reduce net revenues available to investors. The company has not provided any revenue projections, comparable film performance data, or evidence of market demand for this particular film.

Documentary film production requires obtaining proper clearances and licenses for a wide range of intellectual property, including archival footage, photographs, music, artwork, trademarks, and other copyrighted materials that may appear in the film. The company's use of proceeds includes funding for archival research and clearance, music supervision and licensing preparation, and legal expenses, indicating that significant rights clearance work remains to be completed. Failure to obtain proper clearances or licenses could result in the company being unable to distribute the film, facing copyright infringement claims, or being required to remove or replace content, which could delay distribution and increase costs. Music licensing in particular can be extremely expensive and complex, especially for commercially released music, and the company may not be able to afford or obtain licenses for all desired music. Additionally, if the film includes interviews or footage of individuals, the company must obtain proper releases and comply with rights of publicity and privacy laws. Any disputes over intellectual property rights could result in costly litigation, distribution delays, or the need to re-edit the film.

Documentary films that depict real people, events, and institutions carry inherent risks of legal claims including defamation, invasion of privacy, false light, and misappropriation of likeness. If any person or entity depicted in the film believes they have been portrayed inaccurately, unfavorably, or without proper consent, they may bring legal action against the company. Defending against such claims can be extremely costly and time-consuming, even if the claims are ultimately unsuccessful. Documentary filmmakers have certain First Amendment protections, but these protections are not absolute and depend on factors such as whether statements are factual or opinion, whether subjects are public or private figures, and whether the filmmaker acted with actual malice or reckless disregard for the truth. The company may be required to obtain errors and omissions insurance as a condition of distribution, which can be expensive and may not be available if insurers identify significant legal risks in the content. Legal disputes could delay or prevent distribution, require costly settlements, or result in judgments that exceed the company's resources.

Investors in this offering will have extremely limited or no governance rights with respect to Hapa Flick Productions, LLC. The securities being offered are custom securities, and the specific terms regarding governance rights, information rights, and other governance protections have not been disclosed. Investors should assume they will have no ability to vote on company matters, elect directors, approve major transactions, or otherwise influence the company's strategic direction or operations. All decisions regarding the completion of the film, selection of distributors, negotiation of distribution terms, use of company funds, and allocation of revenues will be made solely by company management without investor input or approval. There is no board of directors or advisory board that includes investor representation. Investors will be entirely dependent on the judgment and integrity of the single individual running the company, with no meaningful oversight or accountability mechanisms. Even if investors collectively disagree with management's decisions, they will have no practical recourse other than potentially costly and uncertain litigation.

The company's business model depends on successfully completing post-production of a documentary film and securing commercial distribution that generates sufficient revenue to provide returns to investors. There is no guarantee that the company will be able to complete the film to a commercially viable standard, even with the proceeds from this offering. Film production involves numerous creative, technical, and logistical challenges, and delays or cost overruns are common in the industry. Furthermore, even if the film is completed, there is no assurance that the company will be able to secure distribution agreements on favorable terms, or at all. The documentary film market is highly competitive, and distribution decisions are subjective and dependent on factors outside the company's control, including market trends, buyer preferences, festival acceptance, critical reception, and the availability of distribution channels. The company has not disclosed any existing distribution agreements, letters of intent, or commitments from distributors, festivals, or buyers.

DELIVERY & CANCELLATIONS

11. How will the issuer complete the transaction and deliver securities to the investors?

If we reach our target offering amount prior to the deadline, we may conduct an initial closing of the offering early if we provide notice about the new offering deadline at least five business days prior to the new offering deadline (absent a material change that would require an extension of the offering and reconfirmation of the investment commitment). Wefunder will notify investors if we conduct an initial closing. Thereafter, we may conduct additional closings from time to time at our and Wefunder's discretion until the deadline date.

The following describes the process to invest in the Company, including how the Company will complete an investor's transaction and deliver securities to the investor.

Investor Commitment. The Investor will submit, through Wefunder Portal, a requested investment amount. When doing so, the Investor will also execute an investment contract with the Company ("Investment Agreement"), using the Investor's electronic signature.

Acceptance of the Investment. If the Investor Agreement is complete, the Investor's commitment will typically be recorded within a few minutes. The commitment will also be available on the Investor's "My Investments" screen on the wefunder.com website. After the offering closes, the contract will be counter-signed by the Company. The executed investment contract will then be sent to the investor via email, and is also available to download on the "My Investments" screen.

Investor Transfer of Funds. Upon receiving confirmation that an investment has been accepted, the Investor will be responsible for transferring funds from a source that is accepted by Wefunder Portal into an escrow account held with a third party bank on behalf of issuers offering securities through Wefunder Portal.

Progress of the Offering. The Investor will receive periodic email updates on the progress of the offering, including total amounts raised at any given time, and will be notified by email and through the "My Investments" screen when the target offering amount is met.

Closing: Original Deadline. Unless we meet the target offering amount early, Investor funds will be transferred from the escrow account to the Company on the deadline date identified in the Cover Page to this Form C and the Company's Wefunder Portal Profile.

Early Closings. If the target offering amount is met prior to the original deadline date, we may close the offering earlier, but no less than 21 days after the date on which information about the Company, including this Form C, is posted on our Wefunder Portal Profile. We will reschedule the offering deadline, and at least five days prior to the new deadline, investors will receive notice of it by email and through the "My Investments" screen. At the time of the new deadline, your funds will be transferred to the Company from the escrow account, provided that the target offering amount is still met after any cancellations.

Book Entry. Investments may be in book entry form. This means that the Investor may not receive a certificate representing his or her investment. Each investment will be recorded in our books and records and will be recorded in each investors' "My Investments" screen. The Investor will also be emailed the Investment Agreement again. The Investment Agreement will also be available on the "My Investments" screen. At the option of the Company, you may receive an electronic certificate.

12. How can an investor cancel an investment commitment?

NOTE: Investors may cancel an investment commitment until 48 hours prior to the deadline identified in these offering materials.

The intermediary will notify investors when the target offering amount has been met. If the issuer reaches the target offering amount prior to the deadline identified in the offering materials, it may close the offering early if it provides notice about the new offering deadline at least five business days prior to such new offering deadline.

If an investor does not cancel an investment commitment before the 48-hour period prior to the offering deadline, the funds will be released to the issuer upon closing of the offering and the investor will receive securities in exchange for his or her investment.

If an investor does not reconfirm his or her investment commitment after a material change is made to the offering, the investor's investment commitment will be canceled and the committed funds will be returned.

An Investor's right to cancel. An Investor may cancel his or her investment commitment at any time until 48 hours prior to the offering deadline.

If there is a material change to the terms of the offering or the information provided to the Investor about the offering and/or the Company, the Investor will be provided notice of the change and must re-confirm his or her investment commitment within five business days of receipt of the notice. If the Investor does not reconfirm, he or she will receive notifications disclosing that the commitment was cancelled, the reason for the cancellation, and the refund amount that the investor is required to receive. If a material change occurs within five business days of the maximum number of days the offering is to remain open, the offering will be extended to allow for a period of five business days for the investor to reconfirm.

If the Investor cancels his or her investment commitment during the period when cancellation is permissible, or does not reconfirm a commitment in the case of a material change to the investment, or the offering does not close, all of the Investor's funds will be returned within five business days.

Within five business days of cancellation of an offering by the Company, the Company will give each investor notification of the cancellation, disclose the reason for the cancellation, identify the refund amount the Investor will receive, and refund the Investor's funds.

The Company's right to cancel. The Investment Agreement you will execute with us provides the Company the right to cancel for any reason before the offering deadline.

If the sum of the investment commitments from all investors does not equal or exceed the target offering amount at the time of the offering deadline, no securities will be sold in the offering, investment commitments will be cancelled and committed funds will be returned.

3. as part of an offering registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission; or
4. to a member of the family of the purchaser or the equivalent, to a trust controlled by the purchaser, to a trust created for the benefit of a member of the family of the purchaser or the equivalent, or in connection with the death or divorce of the purchaser or other similar circumstance.

NOTE: The term "accredited investor" means any person who comes within any of the categories set forth in Rule 501(a) of Regulation D, or who the seller reasonably believes comes within any of such categories, at the time of the sale of the securities to that person.

The term "member of the family of the purchaser or the equivalent" includes a child, stepchild, grandchild, parent, stepparent, grandparent, spouse or spousal equivalent, sibling, mother-in-law, father-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, brother-in-law, or sister-in-law of the purchaser, and includes adoptive relationships. The term "spousal equivalent" means a cohabitant occupying a relationship generally equivalent to that of a spouse.

Description of Issuer's Securities

17. What other securities or classes of securities of the issuer are outstanding? Describe the material terms of any other outstanding securities or classes of securities of the issuer.

Class of Security	Authorized	Outstanding	Voting rights
Class of Security	Total Pool	Issued
Warrants	None
Options	None

Describe any other rights:

N/A

18. How may the rights of the securities being offered be materially limited, diluted or qualified by the rights of any other class of security identified above?

The holders of a majority-in-interest of voting rights in the Company could limit the Investor's rights in a material way. For example, those interest holders could vote to change the terms of the agreements governing the Company's operations or cause the Company to engage in additional offerings (including potentially a public offering).

These changes could result in further limitations on the voting rights the Investor will have as an owner of equity in the Company, for example by diluting those rights or limiting them to certain types of events or consents.

To the extent applicable, in cases where the rights of holders of convertible debt, SAFES, or other outstanding options or warrants are exercised, or if new awards are granted under our equity compensation plans, an Investor's interests in the Company may be diluted. This means that the pro-rata portion of the Company represented by the Investor's securities will decrease, which could also diminish the Investor's voting and/or economic rights. In addition, as discussed above, if a majority-in-interest of holders of securities with voting rights cause the Company to issue additional equity, an investor's interest will typically also be diluted.

Based on the risk that an Investor's rights could be limited, diluted or otherwise qualified, the Investor could lose all or part of his or her investment in the securities in this offering, and may never see positive returns.

Additional risks related to the rights of other security holders are discussed below, in Question 20.

19. Are there any differences not reflected above between the securities being offered and each other class of security of the issuer?

No.

20. How could the exercise of rights held by the principal shareholders identified in Question 6 above affect the purchasers of the securities being offered?

As holders of a majority-in-interest of voting rights in the Company, the unitholders may make decisions with which the Investor disagrees, or that negatively affect the value of the Investor's securities in the Company, and the Investor will have no recourse to change these decisions. The Investor's interests may conflict with those of other investors, and there is no guarantee that the Company will develop in a way that is optimal for or advantageous to the Investor.

For example, the unitholders may change the terms of the operating agreement for the company, change the terms of securities issued by the Company, change the management of the Company, and even force out minority holders of securities. The unitholders may make changes that affect the tax treatment of the Company in ways that are unfavorable to you but favorable to them. They may also vote to engage in new offerings and/or to register certain of the Company's securities in a way that negatively affects the value of the securities the Investor owns. Other holders of securities of the Company may also have access to more information than the Investor, leaving the Investor at a disadvantage with respect to any decisions regarding the securities he or she owns.

The unitholders have the right to redeem their securities at any time. Unitholders could decide to force the Company to redeem their securities at a time that is not favorable to the Investor and is damaging to the Company. Investors' exit may affect the value of the Company and/or its viability.

In cases where the rights of holders of convertible debt, SAFES, or other outstanding options or warrants are exercised, or if new awards are granted under our equity compensation plans, an Investor's interests in the Company may be diluted. This means that the pro rata portion of the Company represented by the Investor's securities will decrease, which could also diminish the Investor's voting and/or economic rights. In addition, as discussed above, if a majority-in-interest of holders of securities with voting rights cause the Company to issue additional units, an investor's interest will typically also be diluted.

21. How are the securities being offered being valued? Include examples of methods for how such securities may be valued by the issuer in the future, including during subsequent corporate actions.

The offering price for the securities offered pursuant to this Form C has been determined arbitrarily by the Company, and does not necessarily bear any relationship to the Company's book value, assets, earnings or other generally accepted valuation criteria. In determining the offering price, the Company did not employ investment banking firms or other outside organizations to make an independent appraisal or evaluation. Accordingly, the offering price should not be considered to be indicative of the actual value of the securities offered hereby.

In the future, we will perform valuations of our common units that take into account factors such as the following:

- unrelated third party valuations of our common units;
- the price at which we sell other securities, such as convertible debt or preferred units, in light of the rights, preferences and privileges of our those securities relative to those of our common units;
- our results of operations, financial position and capital resources;
- current business conditions and projections;
- the lack of marketability of our common units;
- the hiring of key personnel and the experience of our management;
- the introduction of new products;
- the risk inherent in the development and expansion of our products;
- our stage of development and material risks related to our business;
- the likelihood of achieving a liquidity event, such as an initial public offering or a sale of our company given the prevailing market conditions and the nature and history of our business;
- industry trends and competitive environment;
- trends in consumer spending, including consumer confidence;
- overall economic indicators, including gross domestic product, employment, inflation and interest rates; and
- the general economic outlook.

We will analyze factors such as those described above using a combination of financial and market-based methodologies to determine our business enterprise value. For example, we may use methodologies that assume that businesses operating in the same industry will share similar characteristics and that the Company's value will correlate to those characteristics, and/or methodologies that compare transactions in similar securities issued by us that were conducted in the market.

22. What are the risks to purchasers of the securities relating to minority ownership in the issuer?

An Investor in the Company will likely hold a minority position in the Company, and thus be limited as to its ability to control or influence the governance and operations of the Company.

The marketability and value of the Investor's interest in the Company will depend upon many factors outside the control of the Investor. The Company will be managed by its officers and be governed in accordance with the strategic direction and decision-making of its Management, and the Investor will have no independent right to name or remove an officer or member of the Management of the Company.

Following the Investor's investment in the Company, the Company may sell interests to additional investors, which will dilute the percentage interest of the Investor in the Company. The Investor may have the opportunity to increase its investment in the Company in such a transaction, but such opportunity cannot be assured.

The amount of additional financing needed by the Company, if any, will depend upon the maturity and objectives of the Company. The declining of an opportunity or the inability of the Investor to make a follow-on investment, or the lack of an opportunity to make such a follow-on investment, may result in substantial dilution of the Investor's interest in the Company.

23. What are the risks to purchasers associated with corporate actions, including additional issuances of securities, issuer repurchases of securities, a sale of the issuer or of assets of the issuer or transactions with related parties?

Additional issuances of securities. Following the Investor's investment in the Company, the Company may sell interests to additional investors, which will dilute the percentage interest of the investor in the Company. The investor may have the opportunity to increase its investment in the Company in such a transaction, but such opportunity cannot be assured. The amount of additional financing needed by the Company, if any, will depend upon the maturity and objectives of the Company. The declining of an opportunity or the inability of the investor to make a follow-on investment, or the lack of an opportunity to make such a follow-on investment, may result in substantial dilution of the investor's interest in the Company.

Issuer repurchases of securities. The Company may have authority to repurchase its securities from unitholders, which may serve to decrease any liquidity in the market for such securities, decrease the percentage interests held by other similarly situated investors to the investor, and create pressure on the investor to sell its securities to the Company concurrently.

A sale of the issuer or of assets of the issuer. As a minority owner of the Company, the investor will have limited or no ability to influence a potential sale of the Company or a substantial portion of its assets. Thus, the investor will rely upon the executive management of the Company to manage the Company so as to maximize value for unitholders. Accordingly, the success of the investor's investment in the Company will depend in large part upon the skill and expertise of the executive management of the Company. If the Management of the Company authorizes a sale of all or a part of the Company, or a disposition of a substantial portion of the Company's assets, there can be no guarantee that the value received by the investor, together with the fair market estimate of the value remaining in the Company, will be equal to or exceed the value of the investor's initial investment in the Company.

Transactions with related parties. The investor should be aware that there will be occasions when the Company may encounter potential conflicts of interest in its operations. On any issue involving conflicts of interest, the executive management of the Company will be guided by their good faith judgement as to the Company's best interests. The Company may engage in transactions with affiliates, subsidiaries or other related parties, which may be on terms which are not arm's-length, but will be in all cases consistent with the duties of the management of the Company to its unitholders. By acquiring an interest in the Company, the investor will be deemed to have acknowledged the existence of any such actual or potential conflicts of interest and to have waived any claim with respect to any liability arising from the existence of any such conflict of interest.

24. Describe the material terms of any indebtedness of the issuer:

None.

INSTRUCTION TO QUESTION 24: name the creditor, amount owed, interest rate, maturity date, and any other material terms.

25. What other exempt offerings has the issuer conducted within the past three years?

Offering date	Exemption	Security type	Amount sold	Use of proceeds
—	Regulation Crowdfunding	custom	$16,450	General operations

26. Was or is the issuer or any entities controlled by or under common control with the issuer a party to any transaction since the beginning of the issuer's last fiscal year, or any currently proposed transaction, where the amount involved exceeds five percent of the aggregate amount of capital raised by the issuer in reliance on Section 4(a)(6) of the Securities Act during the preceding 12-month period, including the amount the issuer seeks to raise in the current offering, in which any of the following persons had or is to have a direct or indirect material interest: ☺

- any director or officer of the issuer;
- any person who is, as of the most recent practicable date, the beneficial owner of 20 percent or more of the issuer's outstanding voting equity securities, calculated on the basis of voting power;
- if the issuer was incorporated or organized within the past three years, any promoter of the issuer;
- or any immediate family member of any of the foregoing persons.

Yes
 No

For each transaction specify the person, relationship to issuer, nature of interest in transaction, and amount of interest.

FINANCIAL CONDITION OF THE ISSUER

27. Does the issuer have an operating history?

Yes

28. Describe the financial condition of the issuer, including, to the extent material, liquidity, capital resources and historical results of operations. ☺

Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations

Overview of the Business and Financial Condition

Produces and exploits documentary, narrative, and other motion picture and media projects. Principal project is a feature documentary about Native Hawaiian musician Israel Kamakawiwo'ole.

We are an early-stage company and are currently operating at approximately break-even, with no material positive or negative cash flows from operations in recent periods. There can be no assurance that this break-even performance will continue in future periods.

As of May 15, 2026, we had cash and cash equivalents of approximately $5,225.

Our ability to continue operations is dependent on managing our expenses and, if necessary, obtaining additional financing.

This discussion should be read in conjunction with the financial statements and related notes included in this offering statement.

Business and Operating Uncertainty

Our business operates in an environment subject to various risks, uncertainties, and changing conditions, which makes it difficult to evaluate our business, financial condition, and prospects and may limit the comparability of our results of operations from period to period.

Financial Condition

As of May 7, 2026, our total assets were $0 and our current and non-current liabilities, as reflected in available financial statement fields, were $0.

Our financial statements reflect an early-stage company with limited operating history. Investors should not place undue reliance on historical financial information given the company's limited operating history and the likelihood that future results will differ from historical results.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

As of May 7, 2026, we did not have any cash or cash equivalents on hand.

Based on our current operations, we are operating at approximately break-even, with monthly net cash flow of approximately $0.

Our monthly net cash burn or profit may vary significantly from month to month due to the timing of receipts and expenditures and other short-term factors. As a result, period-to-period comparisons may not be meaningful.

Based on our current plan, we expect to have sufficient cash to fund operations for at least the next 12 months.

To date, our operations have been funded through minimal cash resources and have not included any external financing. We have also received funds through our nonprofit fiscal sponsor in support of the documentary.

Liquidity Assumptions

Our assessment of our liquidity and ability to fund operations is not a projection and is based on current assumptions regarding operating expenses, cash requirements, and capital needs. These assumptions may change, and actual results may differ materially due to changes in operating conditions, timing of receipts and payments, and other factors.

Dependence on Additional Financing

There can be no assurance that additional financing will be available on acceptable terms, or at all. If we are unable to raise additional capital when needed, we may be required to materially reduce or suspend operations.

Indebtedness and Capital Structure

As of the date of this offering statement, we did not have any outstanding indebtedness.

(For the avoidance of doubt, SAFEs are not treated as indebtedness.)

We have not conducted any exempt offerings or raised capital in the past three years.

Known Trends, Events, and Uncertainties

Management is not currently aware of any known trends, events, or uncertainties that are reasonably likely to have a material adverse effect on our financial condition or results of operations over the next 12 months.

The absence of a discussion of any particular trend, event, or uncertainty should not be interpreted to mean that such matters do not exist; rather, it reflects management's judgment based on information currently available.

Changes Since the Date of the Financial Statements

There have been no material changes in our operations or financial condition since the date of the financial statements included in this offering.

Impact of This Offering

The proceeds from this offering are expected to be used to complete post-production and position the film for commercial distribution. Primary uses of proceeds include: • Professional finishing editor • Assistant editor support • Archival research and clearance • Music supervision. The timing and extent of our use of proceeds will depend on the amount of proceeds raised and future operating conditions. Additional detail regarding our planned use of proceeds is provided in Item 10 of this Form C.

There can be no assurance that the proceeds of this offering will be sufficient to fund our operations or achieve our business objectives.

Certain information relevant to understanding our financial condition and liquidity is presented elsewhere in this offering statement, including in the financial statements, related notes, and the sections describing indebtedness and prior financings.

Forward-Looking Statements

This discussion contains forward-looking statements that are based on management's current expectations and assumptions. Actual results may differ materially from those expressed or implied by these statements.
