RISK FACTORS

8. Discuss the material factors that make an investment in the issuer speculative or risky: ⓘ

A crowdfunding investment involves risk. Investors should not invest any funds unless they can afford to lose the entire investment.

In making an investment decision, investors must rely on their own examination of the issuer and the terms of the offering, including the merits and risks involved. These securities have not been recommended or approved by any federal or state securities commission or regulatory authority. Furthermore, these authorities have not passed upon the accuracy or adequacy of this document.

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission does not pass upon the merits of any securities offered or the terms of the offering, nor does it pass upon the accuracy or completeness of any offering document or literature.

These securities are offered under an exemption from registration; however, the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission has not made an independent determination that these securities are exempt from registration.

We are currently in a pilot phase with academic institutions and have not yet demonstrated a proven, scalable business model or our ability to convert pilot programs into paying customers. Academic institutions typically have lengthy sales cycles, complex procurement processes, limited budgets, and require extensive evaluation periods before committing to new technology platforms. We have not yet established our pricing model, demonstrated customer willingness to pay at levels necessary to sustain our business, or proven our ability to retain customers over time. Our planned transition from pilot programs to paid subscriptions may not be successful, and institutions that are currently testing our platform may ultimately decide not to become paying customers. Additionally, budget constraints in the education sector, competing priorities, and resistance to adopting new technologies could limit our ability to generate revenue. If we are unable to successfully monetize our platform and achieve product-market fit, our business will fail.

Our AI-supported platform for facilitating structured dialogue is still in development, and we have identified numerous platform improvements and features that customers are requesting. There can be no assurance that we will be able to successfully develop and implement these features, that our technology will perform reliably at scale, or that our platform will meet the evolving needs and expectations of academic institutions. Our use of artificial intelligence introduces additional complexity and potential points of failure, including risks related to AI accuracy, bias, inappropriate content generation, and unpredictable behavior. Technical challenges, software bugs, security vulnerabilities, or performance issues could result in service disruptions, loss of customer data, reputational harm, and loss of customers. We may also encounter unforeseen technical obstacles that require significant additional time and resources to overcome. If our platform fails to perform as expected or we are unable to deliver the features and functionality that customers require, our business prospects will be materially harmed.

Our current traction consists primarily of pilot programs with a limited number of academic institutions. We have not yet established a broad, diversified customer base or demonstrated our ability to acquire customers at scale. The loss of one or more of our pilot customers, or the failure of these institutions to convert to paying customers, would have a disproportionately significant adverse effect on our business and prospects. Additionally, our concentration in the higher education market exposes us to risks specific to that sector, including budget cuts, changes in educational priorities, shifts in enrollment, and broader challenges facing colleges and universities. If the academic institutions currently piloting our platform decide not to continue using our services, or if we are unable to expand beyond our initial pilot customers, our business will be severely harmed.

We have incurred operating losses since our inception and expect to continue incurring significant losses for the foreseeable future as we invest in product development, hire personnel, acquire customers, and build our business infrastructure. We do not currently generate meaningful revenue and have not demonstrated our ability to achieve profitability. Our ability to achieve profitability will depend on numerous factors, many of which are beyond our control, including our ability to successfully commercialize our platform, acquire paying customers at scale, establish viable pricing, control our operating expenses, and achieve sufficient revenue to cover our costs. Even if we do achieve profitability, we may not be able to sustain or increase profitability on a quarterly or annual basis. If we are unable to achieve and sustain profitability, investors may lose some or all of their investment.

We will require substantial additional funding beyond this offering to fully develop our platform, scale our operations, acquire customers, and achieve our business objectives. We do not currently have commitments for additional financing, and there can be no assurance that we will be able to raise additional capital on acceptable terms, or at all. Our ability to obtain additional financing will depend on numerous factors, including our progress in developing and commercializing our platform, market conditions, investor interest in our business model and the education technology sector, and factors beyond our control. If we are unable to raise sufficient additional capital when needed, we will be forced to delay, reduce, or eliminate our product development efforts, reduce our workforce, curtail our marketing and customer acquisition activities, or cease operations entirely. Any additional equity financing will result in dilution to existing investors, and debt financing, if available, may include restrictive covenants that limit our operational flexibility.

Our success depends in part on our ability to protect our proprietary technology, processes, and methodologies related to facilitating structured dialogue using AI and Socratic Seminar pedagogy. We currently rely primarily on trade secrets, proprietary know-how, and confidential information to protect our intellectual property, as we have not yet obtained patents or registered trademarks for our platform. We have indicated that we may seek to patent aspects of our platform and trademark our name and logo internationally, but there can be no assurance that any patent or trademark applications will be approved, that any issued patents will provide meaningful protection, or that our trade secrets will remain confidential. The steps we have taken to protect our intellectual property may be inadequate, and competitors may be able to independently develop similar technologies or reverse-engineer our platform. Additionally, we may face claims from third parties alleging that our platform infringes their intellectual property rights, including patents, copyrights, or trademarks. Defending against such claims, regardless of their merit, could be costly and time-consuming, divert management attention, and result in monetary damages or injunctions that prevent us from using key technologies. Any failure to adequately protect our intellectual property or any successful infringement claims against us could materially harm our competitive position and business prospects.

Our platform depends on third-party technology infrastructure and services, including cloud hosting providers, artificial intelligence and machine learning services, communication tools, and other software and technology platforms. We do not control the operation of these third-party services, and any disruption, failure, security breach, or degradation in the performance of these services could adversely affect our ability to operate our platform and serve our customers. Additionally, these third-party providers may increase their prices, change their terms of service in ways that are unfavorable to us, discontinue services we rely upon, or experience their own business difficulties. Our use of third-party AI services also exposes us to risks related to the accuracy, reliability, and appropriateness of AI-generated content and recommendations, which could result in poor user experiences or harmful outputs. As an early-stage company with limited resources, we may have difficulty negotiating favorable terms with these providers or quickly transitioning to alternative services if necessary. Any significant disruption in our access to critical third-party services could result in service outages, loss of customer data, and inability to serve our customers, which would severely harm our business and reputation.

The securities being offered are Simple Agreements for Future Equity (SAFEs), which are not traditional equity or debt instruments. A SAFE does not represent current ownership in the company and will only convert into equity upon the occurrence of specific future events, such as a future priced equity financing or a liquidity event. There is no guarantee that a conversion event will ever occur, and if no such event occurs, investors may never receive equity in the company or any return on their investment. SAFEs do not have a maturity date, do not accrue interest, and do not provide investors with any right to repayment of their investment. The terms of the conversion, including the valuation at which the SAFE converts and the resulting ownership percentage, will depend on the terms of future financing rounds, which are uncertain and beyond investors' control. If the company raises future financing at a valuation below the valuation cap, or if the company is acquired or dissolved before a conversion event occurs, investors may receive equity worth significantly less than their investment or may lose their entire investment. Investors should understand that a SAFE is a highly speculative instrument that may never provide any return.

An investment in Banjo Media, Inc. is highly speculative and involves a high degree of risk. You should invest only if you can afford to lose your entire investment. Given our extremely early stage of development, limited operating history, unproven business model, and the numerous risks and uncertainties we face, there is a substantial likelihood that we will not succeed and that investors will lose all of their invested capital. The success of our business depends on many factors that are uncertain or beyond our control, and even if we successfully develop our platform and acquire customers, we may never generate sufficient revenue to become profitable or provide any return to investors. Early-stage companies like Banjo Media, Inc. have a high rate of failure, and investors should assume that there is a significant probability that their investment will have no value in the future.

There is currently no public market for the securities being offered, and we do not expect that a public market will ever develop. The securities have not been registered under the Securities Act of 1933 or any state securities laws and are being offered in reliance on exemptions from registration requirements. As a result, the securities are subject to significant restrictions on transfer and resale, and investors will be required to bear the financial risks of this investment for an indefinite period of time. You will not be able to sell or otherwise liquidate your investment unless the company completes a liquidity event such as an acquisition or initial public offering, which may never occur. Even if a liquidity event does occur, there is no guarantee that you will be able to sell your securities or that you will receive any return on your investment. Additionally, securities purchased in this offering are subject to a minimum one-year holding period under federal securities laws before they can be resold, even in circumstances where a resale might otherwise be permitted. Investors should be prepared to hold this investment indefinitely and should not invest funds that they may need for other purposes.

Investors in this offering will hold SAFEs that do not currently provide any voting rights or control over company decisions. Even if and when the SAFEs convert to equity, investors will hold a minority interest in the company and will have no ability to influence or control any aspect of our business operations, strategy, or decisions. All decisions regarding our business, including decisions about raising additional capital, entering into significant transactions, hiring and firing personnel, setting compensation, and selling or dissolving the company, will be made by our management and, if applicable, our board of directors, without input from SAFE holders or minority equity holders. The Founder and existing stakeholders will retain control over all company decisions, and their interests may differ from or conflict with the interests of investors. Investors will have no ability to protect their investment through voting rights or other control mechanisms and must rely entirely on the judgment and actions of management.

As a private company, we are not subject to the same disclosure and reporting requirements as public companies, and investors will have limited access to information about our business, financial condition, and operations. We are only required to provide the limited information required under Regulation Crowdfunding, which is significantly less than what public companies must disclose. Investors will not receive regular financial statements, detailed operational updates, or other information that would typically be available for public companies. This lack of transparency makes it difficult for investors to monitor their investment, assess our progress and performance, or make informed decisions about the value of their investment. Additionally, as a private company, we have significant discretion in determining what information to share with investors and when to share it. The limited information available to investors increases the risk and uncertainty of this investment.

Barjo Media, Inc. was formally incorporated in April 2024 and has a limited operating history upon which investors can evaluate our business, operations, and prospects. We are at an early stage of development with a small team, and are currently piloting our product with academic institutions on an unpaid basis. While we have spent years developing our concept, we have limited experience operating as a commercial entity, generating revenue, or scaling our operations. Our business model, product-market fit, and ability to achieve sustainable growth remain unproven. Investors must evaluate an investment in Barjo based primarily on our business plan and the risks and uncertainties frequently encountered by early-stage companies in competitive and evolving markets. There can be no assurance that our business strategy will be successful or that we will be able to successfully commercialize our platform.

In this offering, the Founder of Barjo Media, Inc. has designated himself as the lead investor who will sign documents and make decisions on behalf of all investors in the special purpose vehicle (SPV). This arrangement creates significant and inherent conflicts of interest because the Founder simultaneously represents the interests of the company (as its founder and sole employee) and the interests of investors (as the lead investor and SPV representative). These interests may not always align and may in fact directly conflict. For example, decisions about company valuation, terms of future financings, timing and terms of a sale or liquidation, and allocation of proceeds in a liquidity event may benefit the company and Founder at the expense of investors, or vice versa. The Founder will have access to material non-public information about the company that other investors do not have, creating an information asymmetry that could be used to the founder's advantage. Unlike typical investment structures where investors have an independent third-party representative or fiduciary acting solely in their interests, investors in this offering have no independent advocate and must rely on the Founder to represent their interests even when those interests conflict with the Founder's interests as company operator. This structure significantly increases the risk that investor interests will be subordinated to the interests of the company and Founder, and investors will have no recourse if the Founder makes decisions that favor the company over investors.

Our business is heavily dependent on the continued services and performance of our Founder, who is currently our only full-time employee. Our Founder is responsible for several aspects of our business operations, including product development, customer relationships, fundraising, strategic planning, and day-to-day management. The loss of our Founder's services for any reason would have an immediate and severely adverse effect on our business, operating results, and prospects. We do not maintain key person life insurance on our Founder. Additionally, as we attempt to grow, we will need to attract, hire, and retain additional qualified personnel, including engineers, sales professionals, and operational staff. There can be no assurance that we will be successful in recruiting the talent necessary to execute our business plan, particularly given our early stage, limited resources, and competition for qualified personnel from larger, more established companies with greater financial resources.

Our business and operations are subject to risks from events beyond our control, including pandemics, natural disasters, geopolitical conflicts, economic recessions, and other force majeure events. While our platform is designed to facilitate online dialogue, our ability to operate depends on the continued functioning of internet infrastructure, cloud service providers, and technology systems. Additionally, our target customers—academic institutions—are particularly vulnerable to external disruptions that affect enrollment, budgets, and operational priorities. Economic downturns may lead to reduced education funding, budget cuts at universities, and decreased willingness to invest in new technology platforms. Public health crises, natural disasters, or other catastrophic events could disrupt our operations, prevent us from serving customers, or reduce demand for our services. As a very early-stage company with limited resources and no geographic or operational diversification, we are particularly vulnerable to such disruptions and may lack the financial reserves or operational resilience to withstand significant adverse events.

While we have generated interest from academic institutions and are conducting pilots at several universities, we have not yet demonstrated an ability to generate revenue. We are attempting to manage relationships with multiple institutions, develop our product roadmap, implement requested features, and build our business infrastructure simultaneously. Our ability to successfully scale our operations, hire qualified personnel, implement necessary systems and processes, and maintain the quality of our platform and customer service as we grow is unproven. Academic institutions have high expectations for reliability, security, and support, and any failure to meet these expectations could damage our reputation and limit our ability to acquire and retain customers. If we are unable to effectively manage our growth or if we grow more slowly than anticipated, our business prospects and financial condition will be materially adversely affected.

The education technology and online communication platform markets are highly competitive, rapidly evolving, and characterized by frequent technological changes and shifting customer preferences. We face competition from established education technology companies, learning management systems, video conferencing platforms, discussion forum tools, and other communication and collaboration platforms, many of which have substantially greater financial resources, technical capabilities, brand recognition, customer bases, and market presence than we do. Competitors may be able to develop superior products, offer more attractive pricing, establish stronger relationships with academic institutions, or respond more quickly to market changes. Additionally, larger technology companies could enter our market or develop competing products, potentially making our platform obsolete. If we are unable to compete effectively, we may be unable to acquire customers, generate revenue, or achieve our business objectives.

Our success depends on academic institutions recognizing the need for structured dialogue platforms and choosing to adopt our solution. The market for AI-supported dialogue platforms in education is nascent and unproven, and we cannot predict whether significant demand for our platform will develop or be sustained. Academic institutions may be resistant to adopting new technologies due to budget constraints, satisfaction with existing tools, concerns about change management, faculty resistance, student privacy considerations, or skepticism about the effectiveness of our approach. Additionally, our mission to address complex societal challenges such as polarization and mental health through structured dialogue is ambitious and difficult to measure, and institutions may question whether our platform can deliver meaningful results. If academic institutions do not perceive sufficient value in our platform or are unwilling to invest in new dialogue technologies, our business may not succeed.

Our platform facilitates conversations on potentially controversial topics in academic settings and uses artificial intelligence to support these discussions, which may subject us to complex and evolving legal and regulatory requirements. We must navigate tensions between content moderation and free speech principles, particularly in educational contexts where academic freedom is highly valued. We are subject to federal and state laws governing student privacy, including the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), which imposes strict requirements on how educational institutions and their service providers handle student information. The use of artificial intelligence in education is facing increasing regulatory scrutiny, with concerns about algorithmic bias, transparency, student data usage, and the appropriateness of AI in educational decision-making. Changes to existing laws, adoption of new regulations, or unfavorable interpretations of existing requirements could require us to modify our platform, change our business practices, incur significant compliance costs, or face penalties. Additionally, if we fail to adequately moderate harmful content or if our AI systems produce biased or inappropriate outputs, we could face legal liability, regulatory action, and reputational harm that could damage our business.

Our platform collects, stores, and processes sensitive information from students and academic institutions, including personal information, conversation content, and potentially confidential institutional data. We are subject to numerous federal and state data privacy and security laws and regulations, including FERPA, state student privacy laws, and general data protection regulations that impose strict requirements on how we collect, use, store, and share this information. We must also comply with contractual obligations and institutional policies regarding data security and privacy. Any security breach, unauthorized access, data loss, or failure to protect sensitive information could result in significant legal liability, regulatory penalties, loss of customer trust, termination of customer relationships, and severe reputational harm. As a very early-stage company with limited resources and personnel, we may lack the security infrastructure and expertise necessary to adequately protect against evolving cybersecurity threats. The costs of implementing and maintaining adequate security measures, responding to security incidents, and complying with data privacy regulations may be substantial and could strain our limited financial resources.

We may need to raise substantial additional capital in the future to fund our operations and growth, and any such future financings will dilute the ownership percentage of existing investors. While the SAFE includes a valuation cap that provides some protection against dilution in the initial conversion, investors have no anti-dilution protection or other rights to prevent or limit dilution from subsequent financings after conversion. We may issue additional equity securities, convertible debt, SAFEs, or other instruments in future financings at valuations or on terms that are more favorable than those provided to investors in this offering. Each additional issuance of securities will reduce the percentage ownership of existing investors and may reduce the value of their investment. Additionally, future investors may negotiate rights, preferences, or protections that are superior to those held by earlier investors, further diminishing the value and rights associated with securities purchased in this offering. Given our early stage and significant future capital needs, investors should expect substantial dilution from future financings.

The Company may never receive a future equity financing or elect to convert the Securities upon such future financing. In addition, the Company may never undergo a liquidity event such as a sale of the Company or an IPO. If neither the conversion of the Securities nor a liquidity event occurs, the Purchasers could be left holding the Securities in perpetuity. The Securities have numerous transfer restrictions and will likely be highly illiquid, with no secondary market on which to sell them. The Securities are not equity interests, have no ownership rights, have no rights to the Company's assets or profits and have no voting rights or ability to direct the Company or its actions.

Management expects to apply oversubscription proceeds toward accelerated hiring and pilots but may reallocate among categories as business needs and opportunities evolve.

DELIVERY & CANCELLATIONS

11. How will the issuer complete the transaction and deliver securities to the investors?

Book Entry and Investment in the Co-Issuer. Investors will make their investments by investing in interests issued by one or more co-issuers, each of which is a special purpose vehicle ("SPV"). The SPV will invest all amounts it receives from investors in securities issued by the Company. Interests issued to investors by the SPV will be in book entry form. This means that the investor will not receive a certificate representing his or her investment. Each investment will be recorded in the books and records of the SPV. In addition, investors' interests in the investments will be recorded in each investor's "Portfolio" page on the Wefunder platform. All references in this Form C to an Investor's investment in the Company (or similar phrases) should be interpreted to include investments in a SPV.

12. How can an investor cancel an investment commitment?

NOTE: Investors may cancel an investment commitment until 48 hours prior to the deadline identified in these offering materials.

The intermediary will notify investors when the target offering amount has been met. If the issuer reaches the target offering amount prior to the deadline identified in the offering materials, it may close the offering early if it provides notice about the new offering deadline at least five business days prior to such new offering deadline.

If an investor does not cancel an investment commitment before the 48-hour period prior to the offering deadline, the funds will be released to the issuer upon closing of the offering and the investor will receive securities in exchange for his or her investment.

If an investor does not reconfirm his or her investment commitment after a material change is made to the offering, the investor's investment commitment will be canceled and the committed funds will be returned.

An investor's right to cancel. An investor may cancel his or her investment commitment at any time until 48 hours prior to the offering deadline.

If there is a material change to the terms of the offering or the information provided to the investor about the offering and/or the Company, the investor will be provided notice of the change and must re-confirm his or her investment commitment within five business days of receipt of the notice. If the investor does not reconfirm, he or she will receive notifications disclosing that the commitment was cancelled, the reason for the cancellation, and the refund amount that the investor is required to receive. If a material change occurs within five business days of the maximum number of days the offering is to remain open, the offering will be extended to allow for a period of five business days for the investor to reconfirm.

If the investor cancels his or her investment commitment during the period when cancellation is permissible, or does not reconfirm a commitment in the case of a material change to the investment, or the offering does not close, all of the investor's funds will be returned within five business days.

Within five business days of cancellation of an offering by the Company, the Company will give each investor notification of the cancellation, disclose the reason for the cancellation, identify the refund amount the investor will receive, and refund the investor's funds.

The Company's right to cancel. The Investment Agreement you will execute with us provides the Company the right to cancel for any reason before the offering deadline.

If the sum of the investment commitments from all investors does not equal or exceed the target offering amount at the time of the offering deadline, no securities will be sold in the offering, investment commitments will be cancelled and committed funds will be returned.

Ownership and Capital Structure

THE OFFERING

13. Describe the terms of the securities being offered.

To view a copy of the SAFE you will purchase, please see Appendix B, Investor Contracts. The main terms of the SAFEs are provided below.

The SAFEs. We are offering securities in the form of a Simple Agreement for Future Equity ("SAFE"), which provides Investors the right to Preferred Stock in the Company ("Preferred Stock"), when and if the Company sponsors an equity offering that involves Preferred Stock, on the standard terms offered to other Investors.

Conversion to Preferred Equity. Based on our SAFEs, when we engage in an offering of equity interests involving Preferred Stock, Investors will receive a number of shares of Preferred Stock calculated using the method that results in the greater number of Preferred Stock:

the total value of the Investor's investment, divided by the price of Preferred Stock issued to new Investors

if the valuation for the company is more than $6,000,000.00 (the "Valuation Cap"), the amount invested by the Investor divided by the quotient of the Valuation Cap divided by the total amount of the Company's capitalization at that time.

For investors up to the first $450,000.00 of the securities, investors will receive a valuation cap of $5,000,000.00 Wefunder VIP investors will be entitled to these terms for the entire duration of the offering, even if the threshold limit noted above is met.

Additional Terms of the Valuation Cap. For purposes of option (ii) above, the Company's capitalization calculated as of immediately prior to the Equity Offering and without double counting. In each case calculated as if converted to Common Stock (note):

seller reasonably believes comes within any of such categories, at the time of the sale of the securities to that person.

The term "member of the family of the purchaser or the equivalent" includes a child, stepchild, grandchild, parent, stepparent, grandparent, spouse or spousal equivalent, sibling, mother-in-law, father-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, brother-in-law, or sister-in-law of the purchaser, and includes adoptive relationships. The term "spousal equivalent" means a cohabitant occupying a relationship generally equivalent to that of a spouse.

Description of Issuer's Securities

17. What other securities or classes of securities of the issuer are outstanding? Describe the material terms of any other outstanding securities or classes of securities of the issuer.

Class of Security	Authorized	Outstanding	Voting rights
Voting Common Stock	900000	500000	☒
Non-voting Common Stock	100000	28477	☐
Class of Security	Total Pool
Warrants	None
Options	71523

Describe any other rights:

One class is voting, one class is non-voting.

18. How may the rights of the securities being offered be materially limited, diluted or qualified by the rights of any other class of security identified above?

The holders of a majority-in-interest of voting rights in the Company could limit the Investor's rights in a material way. For example, those interest holders could vote to change the terms of the agreements governing the Company's operations or cause the Company to engage in additional offerings (including potentially a public offering).

These changes could result in further limitations on the voting rights the investor will have as an owner of equity in the Company, for example by diluting those rights or limiting them to certain types of events or consents.

To the extent applicable, in cases where the rights of holders of convertible debt, SAFES, or other outstanding options or warrants are exercised, or if new awards are granted under our equity compensation plans, an Investor's interests in the Company may be diluted. This means that the pro rata portion of the Company represented by the Investor's securities will decrease, which could also diminish the Investor's voting and/or economic rights. In addition, as discussed above, if a majority-in-interest of holders of securities with voting rights cause the Company to issue additional equity, an Investor's interest will typically also be diluted.

Based on the risk that an Investor's rights could be limited, diluted or otherwise qualified, the investor could lose all or part of his or her investment in the securities in this offering, and may never see positive returns.

Additional risks related to the rights of other security holders are discussed below, in Question 20.

19. Are there any differences not reflected above between the securities being offered and each other class of security of the issuer?

No.

20. How could the exercise of rights held by the principal shareholders identified in Question 6 above affect the purchasers of the securities being offered?

As holders of a majority-in-interest of voting rights in the Company, the shareholders may make decisions with which the Investor disagrees, or that negatively affect the value of the Investor's securities in the Company, and the Investor will have no recourse to change these decisions. The Investor's interests may conflict with those of other investors, and there is no guarantee that the Company will develop in a way that is optimal for or advantageous to the Investor.

For example, the shareholders may change the terms of the articles of incorporation for the company, change the terms of securities issued by the Company, change the management of the Company, and even force out minority holders of securities. The shareholders may make changes that affect the tax treatment of the Company in ways that are unfavorable to you but favorable to them. They may also vote to engage in new offerings and/or to register certain of the Company's securities in a way that negatively affects the value of the securities the Investor owns. Other holders of securities of the Company may also have access to more information than the Investor, leaving the Investor at a disadvantage with respect to any decisions regarding the securities he or she owns.

The shareholders have the right to redeem their securities at any time. Shareholders could decide to force the Company to redeem their securities at a time that is not favorable to the Investor and is damaging to the Company. Investors' exit may affect the value of the Company and/or its viability.

In cases where the rights of holders of convertible debt, SAFES, or other outstanding options or warrants are exercised, or if new awards are granted under our equity compensation plans, an Investor's interests in the Company may be diluted. This means that the pro rata portion of the Company represented by the Investor's securities will decrease, which could also diminish the Investor's voting and/or economic rights. In addition, as discussed above, if a majority-in-interest of holders of securities with voting rights cause the Company to issue additional stock, an Investor's interest will typically also be diluted.

21. How are the securities being offered being valued? Include examples of methods for how such securities may be valued by the issuer in the future, including during subsequent corporate actions.

The offering price for the securities offered pursuant to this Form C has been determined arbitrarily by the Company, and does not necessarily bear any relationship to the Company's book value, assets, earnings or other generally accepted valuation criteria. In determining the offering price, the Company did not employ investment banking firms or other outside organizations to make an independent appraisal or evaluation. Accordingly, the offering price should not be considered to be indicative of the actual value of the securities offered hereby.

The initial amount invested in a SAFE is determined by the investor, and we do not guarantee that the SAFE will be converted into any particular number of shares of Preferred Stock. As discussed in Question 13, when we engage in an offering of equity interests involving Preferred Stock, investors may receive a number of shares of Preferred Stock calculated as either (i) the total value of the Investor's investment, divided by the price of the Preferred Stock being issued to new investors, or (ii) if the valuation for the company is more than the Valuation Cap, the amount invested divided by the quotient of (a) the Valuation Cap divided by (b) the total amount of the Company's capitalization at that time.

Because there will likely be no public market for our securities prior to an initial public offering or similar liquidity event, the price of the Preferred Stock that investors will receive, and/or the total value of the Company's capitalization, will be determined by our board of directors. Among the factors we may consider in determining the price of Preferred Stock are prevailing market conditions, our financial information, market valuations of other companies that we believe to be comparable to us, estimates of our business potential, the present state of our development and other factors deemed relevant.

In the future, we will perform valuations of our stock (including both common stock and Preferred Stock) that take into account, as applicable, factors such as the following:

- unrelated third party valuations;
- the price at which we sell other securities in light of the relative rights, preferences and privileges of those securities;
- our results of operations, financial position and capital resources;
- current business conditions and projections;
- the marketability or lack thereof of the securities;
- the hiring of key personnel and the experience of our management;
- the introduction of new products;
- the risk inherent in the development and expansion of our products;
- our stage of development and material risks related to our business;
- the likelihood of achieving a liquidity event, such as an initial public offering or a sale of our company given the prevailing market conditions and the nature and history of our business;
- industry trends and competitive environment;
- trends in consumer spending, including consumer confidence;

- overall economic indicators, including gross domestic product, employment, inflation and interest rates; and
- the general economic outlook.

We will analyze factors such as those described above using a combination of financial and market-based methodologies to determine our business enterprise value. For example, we may use methodologies that assume that businesses operating in the same industry will share similar characteristics and that the Company's value will correlate to those characteristics, and/or methodologies that compare transactions in similar securities issued by us that were conducted in the market.

22. What are the risks to purchasers of the securities relating to minority ownership in the issuer?

An Investor in the Company will likely hold a minority position in the Company, and thus be limited as to its ability to control or influence the governance and operations of the Company.

The marketability and value of the Investor's interest in the Company will depend upon many factors outside the control of the Investor. The Company will be managed by its officers and be governed in accordance with the strategic direction and decision-making of its Board Of Directors, and the Investor will have no independent right to name or remove an officer or member of the Board Of Directors of the Company.

Following the Investor's investment in the Company, the Company may sell interests to additional investors, which will dilute the percentage interest of the Investor in the Company. The Investor may have the opportunity to increase its investment in the Company in such a transaction, but such opportunity cannot be assured.

The amount of additional financing needed by the Company, if any, will depend upon the maturity and objectives of the Company. The declining of an opportunity or the inability of the Investor to make a follow-on investment, or the lack of an opportunity to make such a follow-on investment, may result in substantial dilution of the Investor's interest in the Company.

23. What are the risks to purchasers associated with corporate actions, including additional issuances of securities, issuer repurchases of securities, a sale of the issuer or of assets of the issuer or transactions with related parties?

Additional issuances of securities. Following the Investor's investment in the Company, the Company may sell interests to additional investors, which will dilute the percentage interest of the Investor in the Company. The Investor may have the opportunity to increase its investment in the Company in such a transaction, but such opportunity cannot be assured. The amount of additional financing needed by the Company, if any, will depend upon the maturity and objectives of the Company. The declining of an opportunity or the inability of the Investor to make a follow-on investment, or the lack of an opportunity to make such a follow-on investment, may result in substantial dilution of the Investor's interest in the Company.

Issuer repurchases of securities. The Company may have authority to repurchase its securities from shareholders, which may serve to decrease any liquidity in the market for such securities, decrease the percentage interests held by other similarly situated investors to the Investor, and create pressure on the Investor to sell its securities to the Company concurrently.

A sale of the issuer or of assets of the issuer. As a minority owner of the Company, the Investor will have limited or no ability to influence a potential sale of the Company or a substantial portion of its assets. Thus, the Investor will rely upon the executive management of the Company and the Board of Directors of the Company to manage the Company so as to maximize value for shareholders. Accordingly, the success of the Investor's investment in the Company will depend in large part upon the skill and expertise of the executive management of the Company and the Board of Directors of the Company. If the Board Of Directors of the Company authorizes a sale of all or a part of the Company, or a disposition of a substantial portion of the Company's assets, there can be no guarantee that the value received by the Investor, together with the fair market estimate of the value remaining in the Company, will be equal to or exceed the value of the Investor's initial investment in the Company.

Transactions with related parties. The Investor should be aware that there will be occasions when the Company may encounter potential conflicts of interest in its operations. On any issue involving conflicts of interest, the executive management and Board of Directors of the Company will be guided by their good faith judgement as to the Company's best interests. The Company may engage in transactions with affiliates, subsidiaries or other related parties, which may be on terms which are not arm's-length, but will be in all cases consistent with the duties of the management of the Company to its shareholders. By acquiring an interest in the Company, the Investor will be deemed to have acknowledged the existence of any such actual or potential conflicts of interest and to have waived any claim with respect to any liability arising from the existence of any such conflict of interest.

24. Describe the material terms of any indebtedness of the issuer:

None.

INSTRUCTION TO QUESTION 24: name the creditor, amount owed, interest rate, maturity date, and any other material terms.

25. What other exempt offerings has the issuer conducted within the past three years?

Offering date	Exemption	Security type	Amount sold	Use of proceeds
—	Regulation Crowdfunding	SAFE	$206,750	General operations

26. Was or is the issuer or any entities controlled by or under common control with the issuer a party to any transaction since the beginning of the issuer's last fiscal year, or any currently proposed transaction, where the amount involved exceeds five percent of the aggregate amount of capital raised by the issuer in reliance on Section 4(a)(6) of the Securities Act during the preceding 12- month period, including the amount the issuer seeks to raise in the current offering, in which any of the following persons had or is to have a direct or indirect material interest: ⓘ

1. any director or officer of the issuer;
2. any person who is, as of the most recent practicable date, the beneficial owner of 20 percent or more of the issuer's outstanding voting equity securities, calculated on the basis of voting power;
3. if the issuer was incorporated or organized within the past three years, any promoter of the issuer;
4. or any immediate family member of any of the foregoing persons.

- ☐ Yes
- ☒ No

For each transaction specify the person, relationship to issuer, nature of interest in transaction, and amount of interest.

FINANCIAL CONDITION OF THE ISSUER

27. Does the issuer have an operating history?

Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations

Overview of the Business and Financial Condition

Technology company facilitating AI-assisted structured online debates, operating in education to foster dialogue between students, faculty, and institutions using a Socratic Seminar pedagogy. Formerly named ThinkIf!, Inc.

We are an early-stage company and have incurred operating losses and negative cash flows from operations since inception. We expect to continue to incur operating losses in the near term.

As of July 13, 2026, we had cash and cash equivalents of approximately $400,000.

Our ability to continue operations is dependent on managing our expenses and, if necessary, obtaining additional financing.

This discussion should be read in conjunction with the financial statements and related notes included in this offering statement.

Business and Operating Uncertainty

Our business operates in an environment subject to various risks, uncertainties, and changing conditions, which makes it difficult to evaluate our business, financial condition, and prospects and may limit the comparability of our results of operations from period to period.

Financial Condition

As of December 31, 2025, our total assets were $143,529 and our current and non-current liabilities, as reflected in available financial statement fields, were $0.

Our financial statements reflect an early-stage company with limited operating history. Investors should not place undue reliance on historical financial information given the company's limited operating history and the likelihood that future results will differ from historical results.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

As of December 31, 2025, we did not have any cash or cash equivalents on hand.

Based on our current operations, we have a monthly net cash burn of approximately $45,000.

Our monthly net cash burn or profit may vary significantly from month to month due to the timing of receipts and expenditures and other short-term factors. As a result, period-to-period comparisons may not be meaningful.

Based on our current plan, we expect to have sufficient cash to fund operations for at least the next 12 months.

To date, our operations have been funded through minimal cash resources and have not included any external financing.

Liquidity Assumptions

Our assessment of our liquidity and ability to fund operations is not a projection and is based on current assumptions regarding operating expenses, cash requirements, and capital needs. These assumptions may change, and actual results may differ materially due to changes in operating conditions, timing of receipts and payments, and other factors.

Dependence on Additional Financing

There can be no assurance that additional financing will be available on acceptable terms, or at all. If we are unable to raise additional capital when needed, we may be required to materially reduce or suspend operations.

Indebtedness and Capital Structure

As of the date of this offering statement, we did not have any outstanding indebtedness.

(For the avoidance of doubt, SAFEs are not treated as indebtedness.)

We have not conducted any exempt offerings or raised capital in the past three years. We have been funded with approximately $304,701 in capital contributions from the Founder.

Known Trends, Events, and Uncertainties

Management is not currently aware of any known trends, events, or uncertainties that are reasonably likely to have a material adverse effect on our financial condition or results of operations over the next 12 months.

The absence of a discussion of any particular trend, event, or uncertainty should not be interpreted to mean that such matters do not exist; rather, it reflects management's judgment based on information currently available.

Changes Since the Date of the Financial Statements

There have been no material changes in our operations or financial condition since the date of the financial statements included in this offering.

Impact of This Offering

The proceeds from this offering are expected to be used to generate early traction across higher education, with conversations underway at several dozen universities ranging from 3 Ivy League institutions to major public research. The timing and extent of our use of proceeds will depend on the amount of proceeds raised and future operating conditions. Additional detail regarding our planned use of proceeds is provided in Item 10 of this Form C.

There can be no assurance that the proceeds of this offering will be sufficient to fund our operations or achieve our business objectives.

Certain information relevant to understanding our financial condition and liquidity is presented elsewhere in this offering statement, including in the financial statements, related notes, and the sections describing indebtedness and prior financings.

Forward-Looking Statements

This discussion contains forward-looking statements that are based on management's current expectations and assumptions. Actual results may differ materially from those expressed or implied by these statements.

OTHER MATERIAL INFORMATION

31. In addition to the information expressly required to be included in this Form, include: ①

- (1) any other material information presented to investors; and
- (2) such further material information, if any, as may be necessary to make the required statements, in light of the circumstances under which they are made, not misleading.

The Lead Investor. As described above, each investor that has entered into the Investor Agreement will grant a power of attorney to make voting decisions on behalf of that investor to the Lead Investor (the "Proxy"). The Proxy is irrevocable unless and until a Successor Lead Investor takes the place of the Lead Investor, in which case, the Investor has a five (5) calendar day period to revoke the Proxy. Pursuant to the Proxy, the Lead Investor or his or her successor will make voting decisions and take any other actions in connection with the voting on Investors' behalf.

The Lead Investor is an individual that is chosen to act in the role of Lead Investor on behalf of Investors that have a Proxy in effect. The Lead Investor will be chosen by the Company and approved by Wefunder Inc. and the identity of the initial Lead Investor will be disclosed to Investors before Investors make a final investment decision to purchase the securities related to the Company.

The Lead Investor can quit at any time or can be removed by Wefunder Inc. for cause or pursuant to a vote of investors as detailed in the Lead Investor Agreement. In the event the Lead Investor quits or is removed, the Company will choose a Successor Lead Investor who must be approved by Wefunder Inc. The identity of the Successor Lead investor will be disclosed to Investors, and those that have a Proxy in effect can choose to either leave such Proxy in place or revoke such Proxy during a 5-day period beginning with notice of the replacement of the Lead Investor.

The Lead Investor will not receive any compensation for his or her services to the SPV. The Lead Investor may receive compensation if, in the future, Wefunder Advisors LLC forms a fund ("Fund") for accredited investors for the purpose of investing in a non-Regulation Crowdfunding offering of the Company. In such circumstances, the Lead investor may act as a portfolio manager for that Fund (and as a supervised person of Wefunder Advisors) and may be compensated through that role.

Although the Lead Investor may act in multiple roles with respect to the Company's offerings and may potentially be compensated for some of its services, the Lead Investor's goal is to maximize the value of the Company and therefore maximize the value of securities issued by or related to the Company. As a result, the Lead Investor's interests should always be aligned with those of Investors. It is, however, possible that in some limited circumstances the Lead Investor's interests could diverge from the interests of Investors, as discussed in section 8 above.

Investors that wish to purchase securities related to the Company through Wefunder Portal must agree to give the Proxy described above to the Lead Investor, provided that if the Lead Investor is replaced, the Investor will have a 5-day period during which he or she may revoke the Proxy. If the Proxy is not revoked during this 5-day period, it will remain in effect.

Tax Filings. In order to complete necessary tax filings, the SPV is required to include information about each investor who holds an interest in the SPV, including each investor's taxpayer identification number ("TIN") (e.g., social security number or employer identification number). To the extent they have not already done so, each investor will be required to provide their TIN within the earlier of (i) two (2) years of making their investment or (ii) twenty (20) days prior to the date of any distribution from the SPV. If an investor does not provide their TIN within this time, the SPV reserves the right to withhold from any proceeds otherwise payable to the investor an amount necessary for the SPV to satisfy its tax withholding obligations as well as the SPV's reasonable estimation of any penalties that may be charged by the IRS or other relevant authority as a result of the investor's failure to provide their TIN. If applicable, the Company may also be required to pay Wefunder certain fees for the preparation of tax filings. Such fees and the Company's obligation to deliver required tax documents are further specified in the related Tax Services Agreement ("TSA").

Investors should carefully review the terms of the SPV Subscription Agreement for additional information about tax filings.

Potential Dissolution of the SPV. The Company has agreed that it will pay an administrative fee and / or certain tax fees to Wefunder, in addition to delivering required tax information in the manner prescribed by the TSA, where applicable. Failure to pay such fees or provide Wefunder with required tax information could result in the dissolution of the SPV (an "SPV Dissolution Event"). Subsequent to an SPV Dissolution Event, the securities held by the SPV would be distributed directly and proportionally to the individual investors. This could create administrative complexities, as investors would need to manage the securities themselves rather than having them held and administered by the SPV. Additionally, the unplanned distribution of securities may not align with investors' intended investment strategy or asset allocation.

Upon an SPV Dissolution Event, the Investor hereby consents to and agrees to accept direct assignment of the SPV's rights and obligations under any investment agreements between the SPV and the Company that is located in the Form C or C/A offering materials. The Investor acknowledges they will be bound by all terms and conditions of such agreements as if they were an original party thereto.
